LIMITS OF CONFIDENTIALITY

Enaahtig Healing Lodge and Learning Centre staff will explain the following information to you. Your signature indicates that you understand and accept the limits of confidentiality. Please feel free to ask any questions you may have pertaining to confidentiality and we will be happy to explain this form and the limits to confidentiality.

Sharing Information

I understand that Enaahtig Healing Lodge and Learning Centre will be asking me for personal information and personal health information to ensure alignment of services. The purpose of the assessment is to develop a plan of care that will support my goals, wellness and recovery. This information will be used to develop a plan of care that may include internal or external referrals and collection of information. This information will be kept in both a hard file as well as an electronic file. Enaahtig Healing Lodge uses a web-based client file system (EMHware) for the creation and storage of client clinical data. This system requires a username and unique individualized password that are provided only to the Enaahtig Healing Lodge staff member.

No individual outside of Enaahtig Healing Lodge and Learning Centre will have access to these files without your written consent. Furthermore, consent can be withdrawn at any time with a written request. Enaahtig clients can request to access their own personal health records by submitting a written request to the Intake Coordinator or Case Manager.

I also understand that there are circumstances where confidential information is legally required to be shared without my written consent. They are as follows:

- When a client is not capable of giving consent
- If we believe that you are in immediate threat to self or others, we are obligated to report this to the proper authorities for the protection of all involved
- We are required by law to report sexual abuse by another regulated health professional
- Suspected or known abuse of a child 16 years of age or under "current"
- In addition, files can be subpoenaed by the court

THE PERSONAL INFORMATION ACT

The Personal Health Information Protection Act, 2004 is a provincial law that governs the collection, use and disclosure of personal health information within the health care system. The object is to keep personal health information confidential and secure, while allowing for the effective delivery of health care services. Under this legislation, health care providers and others who deliver health care services are collectively known as health information "custodians."

What is personal health information?

Personal health information includes any identifying information about an individual's health or health care history, such as your family medical history, details of a recent visit to your doctor, or your Ontario health card number

Do health information custodians need my permission to access my personal health information?

Custodians are permitted to collect, use and disclose your personal health information, on the basis of implied consent, for providing your health care.

What are heath information custodians required to do? Under PHIPA, health information custodians are required to: 1) collect only the information they need to do their job 2) take steps to safeguard your personal health information 3) take reasonable steps to ensure your health records are accurate and complete for the work they do 4) provide a written description of the practices they use to protect your information, and the name of the person to contact if you have any questions or concerns about your personal health records. What are your rights under PHIPA?

PHIPA gives you the right to: 1) give permission (consent) to how your personal health information is collected, used and shared 2) request access to your health records 3) make corrections to your records

For more information of your personal health information rights under PHIPA: Service Ontario Information Line: 1-866-532-3162 (Toll-free)

. PERSONAL INFORMATION AND CONSENT NOTICE

This Notice and Consent is intended to inform you how we will collect, use, disclose, and destroy your personal information.

Your personal information may be collected formally, in writing, and informally. Only necessary information will be collected about you. We will collect, use, and disclose information about you for the following purposes: To develop plans of care and practice case management of your file; To enable accurate referrals are made; For anonymous statistical analysis of programs and services. The storage, retention, and destruction of your personal information complies with this agency's policy, applicable legislation and privacy protection protocols. We are willing to provide a copy of our policy to you at your request.

Your consent may be withdrawn at any time by written notice to this agency. You may access you own personal information or request corrections through a written request to this agency. This consent form will serve for all agency programs you access, with one program designated as your primary provider and your original consent kept in that program file.
